A branch office can only be licensed to a firm or a broker sole-proprietor. You will need the license number of the firm or broker sole-proprietor.

You will need the license number of the broker-in-charge of this branch office. A broker can be the broker-in-charge of more than one office. There is no license issued to the broker-in-charge of the branch.

The branch office license fee is $50 and the license will expire the same year as the firm or broker sole-proprietor it is licensed to.
